Nestled among the grand mansions and embassy residences synonymous with the area, these incredible properties bring a new level of elegance and architectural design to Dublin 4.

The Collection is designed by a group of world-class architects and designers who have produced elegant, modern homes that are both distinctive and reflective of the site's proud heritage.

THE NEIGHBOURHOOI

welcome to S H R E W S B U R Y R O A D

One of Dublin's most exclusive and desirable addresses, Shrewsbury Road traces its origins back to the Earl of Pembroke's estate. The street received the name of Shrewsbury formally in 1874, taken from the marriage of the 13th Earl of Pembroke to Lady Talbot, a cousin of the Earl of Shrewsbury.

Shrewsbury Road is now considered one of Dublin's most striking residential roads, with a mix of house styles reflecting features of the Victorian, Edwardian, Free Style and Arts & Crafts movements from the late 19th and early 20th centuries. The Collection brings a new layer of architectural design to this historic road, using the materials and features of the existing neighbourhood in a modern context that is both sophisticated and sympathetic to the surrounding homes.

An historic neighbour ROYAL DUBLIN SOCIETY

Formed in 1731, The Royal Dublin Society (RDS) was established to promote and develop Irish agriculture, arts, industry and science. The RDS moved to Ballsbridge in 1879, to its current location next to The Collection.

Now, the RDS is the home of local and international events, containing, among other features, a concert hall, a library and a fine sporting arena that is already iconic within European rugby.

The RDS is also home to the annual Horse Show, which in 1926, held the first Aga Khan Trophy contest; the trophy has since become the world's most prestigious show jumping competition.

Just a stone's throw from The Collection, Herbert Park is one of Dublin's oldest and most popular parks to visit.

In 1903, Lord Pembroke gifted the land to the Pembroke Township as a public park to mark the coming of age of his son. Named after Lord Pembroke's father, Sidney Herbert, the park opened to the public in 1911 after being used as the location for the 1907 Dublin International Exhibition. Today the park is a popular relaxation and recreational spot for both locals and visitors.

Ballsbridge residents are just a short walk away from the south city centre, which is packed with Dublin's best restaurants and bars.

Closer to home is a wealth of Michelin-recommended restaurants, including Forest Avenue, The Old Spot, Chop House and Mulberry Garden, all of which are a short stroll from The Collection.

The Aviva stadium is one of The Collection's most famous neighbours. This world-class 51,000 seat stadium is home to the Irish rugby team and has played host to many memorable sporting and entertainment events over the years.

Golfers can choose between two local world-class courses: Elm Park Golf Club (9 holes) and Milltown Golf Club (18 holes). For the tennis enthusiast, both Fitzwilliam Lawn Tennis Club and Donnybrook Lawn Tennis Club are located in the immediate area.

If you prefer immersing yourself in nature, a short stroll will bring you to the idyllic coast at Sandymount. Enjoy walking along the peaceful promenade or try exploring the world of water sports further down the coast at Dun Laoghaire's famous and historic yacht clubs.

THE COLLECTION is named after Sir Alfred Chester Beatty, who housed a famous library and collection at the site, one of many historically important collections in Dublin.

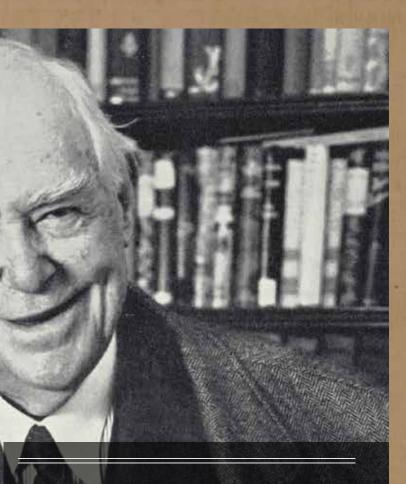

The Collector

Sir Alfred Chester Beatty (1875-1968) was one of the greatest collectors of the twentieth century, and an extraordinary friend to Ireland. His collection was housed at 20 Shrewsbury Road for over 40 years.

Chester Beatty was born in New York in 1875 of Irish, Scots, English and New England descent. A millionaire by the age of 30, he had always been a collector—of minerals and stamps, and later of Chinese snuff bottles, often carved from gemstones. In time, he began to buy books and manuscripts, and by the time he left America for Britain in 1913 he was already a serious and discerning collector. In 1949 he visited Ireland, where, as a renowned collector and leading businessman, senior officials encouraged him with his plan to build a library in Dublin. He moved his collection in 1950 and in the same year bought a site in Shrewsbury Road where his purpose-built Library opened in 1953.

It was Beatty's desire to seek out objects of the greatest rarity and finest quality. His collection is a resource for scholars as well as a leading cultural attraction, enjoyed by visitors from Ireland and from around the world. O SHREWSBURY ROAD | DUBLIN 4 | IRELAND
